

All Discord SERVERS you join or OWN will appear to the far left side of your own server. Think of SERVER as just another way of saying ACCOUNT. In YELLOW are all servers I follow and/or own.

All CATEGORIES are highlighted in ORANGE. Think of categories as HOUSES with individual ROOMS. In Discord, the rooms are called CHANNELS. All channels are highlighted in YELLOW. These rooms are listed in the OOTB Server which is highlighted in BLUE.

When commenting in certain channels, THREADS should be used to ensure visibility of all other posts. Press and hold down the post you want to create a thread for and then select CREATE THREAD.

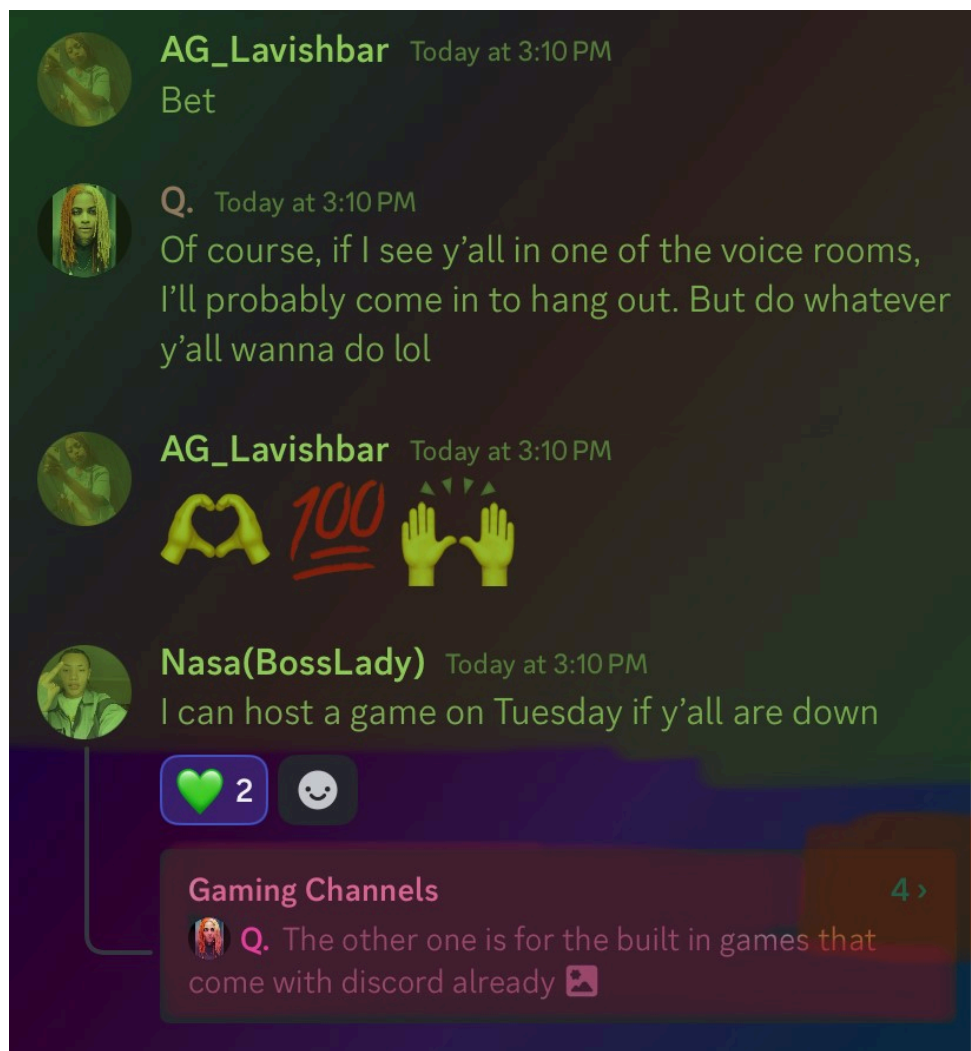

INDIVIDUAL messages are shown BELOW highlighted in GREEN. The messages in GREEN were sent without using THREADS. The message thread highlighted in PINK was created using THREADS.

- Anyone can create public threads in specific channels, but only ONE thread per post can be created.
 - EX: If John creates a thread for Jane's post, Margo cannot create a thread for the same post.

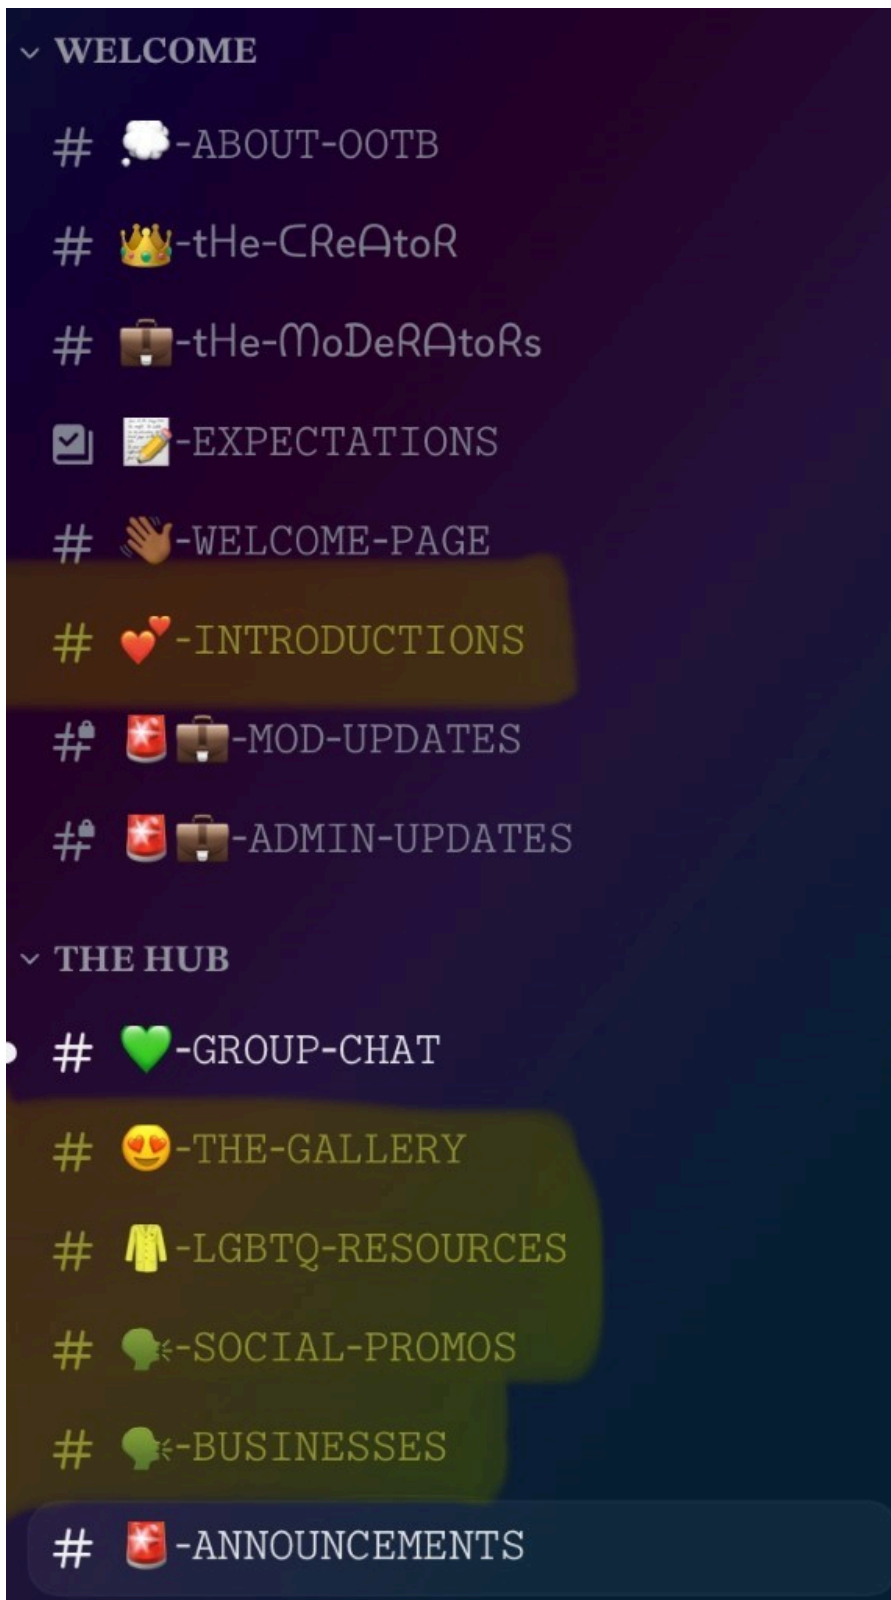

The creator of a thread can name the thread and leave an additional comment or merely start a thread by NAMING the thread. The thread BELOW is named “gaming channel”. Once the thread is created, others can join in and leave comments on it.

As people comment, the MESSAGE COUNT will increase. The message count is highlighted in ORANGE. So far, there are four comments within the thread called gaming channel.

Threads efficiently group multiple messages into a single, centralized location.

Channels that do/do NOT require threads are listed below:
